

You are to imagine that for 15 minutes a captured West African has the opportunity to talk with his captor, the slave runner. The West African can speak freely about anything that is on his mind, including the HORRIBLE conditions he must endure on this journey. The captor will respond appropriately to his captive.

Ultimately* the West African will find out WHY it is so important for him to get to the West Indies.